JIM HARDWICK ON CAMPUS OCTOBER 21-22

National Y. M. Y. W. C. A. Traveling Secretary to Talk To Students

Jim Hardwick, national Y. M. Y. W. C. A. traveling secretary, will be on the campus October 21-22. On Sunday he will speak to Freshman Counselors at 12:30; to students, especially Freshmen, at 3 o'clock; at Vespers at 6:30; and to the Freshmen again at 8 o'clock. On Monday he will talk at Morning Watch in the Alumnae rooms; at 4:30 he will speak to Freshmen in Johnson Hall; and at 6:30 he will talk to all students.

Besides these formal talks Mr. Hardwick will speak informally to individual students.

Mr. Hardwick, captain of the Y. P. L. football team, was an all-South Atlantic end just previous to the World War. He was a lieutenant in the army during the war. He was secretary of the student Y. M. C. A. at Vanderbilt University, and later Freshman coach and student counselor at Ames University. He received his degree at V. P. L. and did graduate work at Southern Y. M. C. A. College, Vanderbilt, and Yale Universities.

During the past four years he has spent all his time visiting the colleges of America, working largely in the South and Middle West. He comes to Winthrop from Presbyterian College, where he has been during the past week.

WINTHROP DELEGATES ATTEND ADGER RETREAT

Minna Nussmer Elected State Officer of Y. M. Y. W. C. A.

Delegates from South Carolina colleges attended the 1934 Y. M. Y. W. C. A. Retreat this past week-end at Camp Adger, located at the foot of Mt. Placencia, the highest peak in South Carolina.

The program, built around the theme "What It Means for a Student to Be a Christian," was the result of almost a year's work by Lillian Hagarth, state president; "Hank" Wilcox, state vice-president; and "Dink" Gaines, state secretary-treasurer. Besides these leaders, such persons as Mr. J. O. Smith and Professor H. C. Bressler, of Clemson, and Mr. Jim Hardwick, national traveling secretary of the Y. M. Y. W. C. A., led discussions. At the end of the retreat officers were elected for next year. These were: "Dink" Gaines (Columbia), president; Charlton Commey (Clemson), vice-president; Minna Nussmer (Winthrop), secretary-treasurer. To serve also on the executive committee are Inez Bodle (Newberry) and Marion Young (Purman).

B.S.U. DELEGATES AT MEMPHIS ASSEMBLY

Winthrop Has Four Representatives to Quadrennial All-Southern Conference

Helen Talbot, local B. S. U. president; Keith Shultz, Evelyn Brock, Eleanor Johnson, Miss Zana Wilson, student secretary, and Dr. R. A. McFarland, pastor of the Baptist Church, will go to Memphis, Tennessee, October 28, to attend the Third Quadrennial All-Southern Baptist Student Conference.

The first session of the conference begins October 28; it will be conducted by the South Carolina delegation, led by Winthrop students. Among the distinguished speakers at the conference will be Secretary of Agriculture Henry Agard Wallace; Dr. T. O. Dunning, of London, England; Dr. W. F. Powell, of Nashville, Tennessee; the Honorable Pat Neff, of Waco, Texas; and Dr. George W. Lea, of Urechoh, China. The program will include addresses, state delegation meetings, a study of world conditions and of Christian internationalism, moving pictures, and musical and dramatic presentations.

POETRY SOCIETY HAS BUSINESS MEETING

Elizabeth McDaniel, Pickens Senior, Elected Treasurer; Charter Is Revised

Elizabeth McDaniel, senior, of Pickens, was elected treasurer of the Student Poetry Society at a business meeting Tuesday night, October 16. She will succeed Helen Cooper, of Greenville, who did not return this year. Elizabeth is a member of Delta Sigma Chi, Home Economics Club, the South Carolina Union, and Phi Sigma Kappa Social Club. The charter of the Poetry Society was revised at this meeting, and the following articles were adopted:

1. The membership shall include not more than twelve students.

2. Each member shall write at least one poem a month. Two successive failures automatically drop the member.

Program plans and care of the bulletin board were also considered. It was decided to hold the meetings at 6:30 on alternate Tuesdays.

Plans for admission of new members remain, only three new members will be elected this year.

The nine old members are as follows: Mary Louise Boynton, president; Dorothy Chambers, vice-president; Betty Garrison, secretary; Elizabeth McDaniel, treasurer; and Ann Ware, Eugene Renneker, Will McFarley, Elizabeth Mitchell, and Maryland Wilson.

COLUMBUS HONORED IN CONVOCATION TALKS

Dr. Keith and Dr. Wheeler Take Part In Anniversary of America's Discovery

Commemorating the 442nd anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, on October 12, 1492, the chapel program for Friday, October 12, was devoted to a review of Columbus and his accomplishments. Dr. P. M. Wheeler, head of the English Department, read Joaquin Miller's "Columbus"; and Dr. Warren O. Keith, head of the History Department, presented new views on the old story of Columbus.

The age that produced Columbus, according to Dr. Keith, was one conducive to expansion and to a spirit of adventure. Western Europe was rapidly becoming unified into great national states. Great Britain, France, and Spain were attaining positions as first-rate powers. Commercial interests, moreover, were undergoing vast changes. Trade was shifting from the Mediterranean and from the control of the Italian city-states to the Atlantic and to the control of the new national states.

Columbus was not alone in his belief that the world was round; for learned men of his time shared his views. Indeed, the great Aristophanes in 300-B. C. had contended that the earth was a sphere, Columbus, moreover, thought that the world was shaped like a pear and that he would sail around the small end.

The personality of Columbus, said Dr. Keith, "can best be characterized by the two traits, perseverance and audacity." He made eight attempts to secure a patron for his enterprise, appealing to the courts of England, Italy, Portugal, and Spain for help. Infinitely friends at the Queen of Castile tried to secure royal aid for him, but Ferdinand and Isabella refused, not because they were troubled with internal strife, as is often stated, but because Columbus' terms were overly demanding. He made plain to the Court that upon discovery of India, he would claim it for himself.

LITERARY SOCIETIES PRESENT PROGRAMS

Winthrop, Wade Hampton, and Curry Have First Regular Meeting of Year

Wade Hampton "Old Curry Literary Societies met in their respective rooms in Johnson Hall Monday evening, October 15; and Winthrop Society met Tuesday, October 16, for the first regular meetings of the year.

Wade Hampton heard Miss Pink Miss Chlo Pink, of the English Department, spoke to Wade Hampton Society on "Rupert Brooke and His Poetry."

Miss Pink compared Brooke with Sir Philip Sidney, John Donne, and John Keats. "The Marlowe," she said, "Brooke is passionate in his poetry. He possesses the same exuberant and defiantly adventurous spirit and the same protesting passion of revolt as Byron. His poetry is characterized by the same intellectual hyper-sensitiveness." Shelley, Keats, and Browning, Brooke has the same multitudinous beauties and whimsical phrasing as Browning.

"In general," Miss Pink continued, "Brooke has a keen sense of conception and a perfection of execution." She concluded her talk by reading three of Brooke's sonnets, "Peace," "The Dead," and "The Soldier."

Preceding Miss Pink's discussion, Virginia McKethen played a piano solo, "The Cradle Song," by MacPadden.

Chloris Ouboun, president, appointed the following committees: Marshals, Louise Bennett and Elizabeth Gregg; bulletin board, Dorothy Chambers and Virginia Scott; program, Alice McNary, chairman; Hallie Mae McKethen and Anne Pruitt.

Virginia McKethen was elected treasurer of the society. Virginia held the honorary positions of scholarship and the Gull Wyle Scholarship. She is a member of the chapel choir and the Religious Education Committee of the Y. W. C. A. She is a highly distinguished student.

Miss Haynesworth reads sketch from Dorothy Parker's "After Such Treasures" and Ethelyn Mitchell played a piano solo, "To a Wild Rose," by MacDowell, at Winthrop Society meeting.

Margaret McGinty, president, led a business discussion before the program.

Curry Elects Treasurer
Margaret McGinty, Junior of Spartanburg, was elected treasurer of Curry Society. She succeeds Mildred Pettigrew, who resigned because of too many points.

The society discussed informally the plans for the coming year. Thirty new members were added.

Dr. Phelps Addresses Missouri Instructors

Dr. Shelton Phelps left Rock Hill Tuesday, October 16, to attend the meeting of the Central Missouri State Teachers' Division in Warrensburg, Missouri. Dr. Phelps spoke before the Secondary Group Thursday afternoon, October 18, and before the general session of the division Thursday night. He addressed the Administrative section of the division this morning.

On his return trip, Dr. Phelps will stop at Mississippi State College for Women at Mississippi, Mississippi, where he will represent Winthrop College at Mississippi semi-centennial celebration, Monday, October 22.

Half-Holiday Granted For York County Fair

Winthrop College students will be guests of the York County Fair Association this afternoon, October 19. All college activities are suspended in order that the students may attend the Fair if they wish.

Robert Montgomery Stars In "The Mystery of Mr. X" Tonight

Robert Montgomery, suave, astute, and sophisticated, has the leading role in "The Mystery of Mr. X," one of the best thrillers yet. As a clever thief, Montgomery is carefully watched by Lewis Stone, of Scotland Yard. Stone believes that the man who stole the Drayton bracelet and the man who killed several policemen are one and the same.

Montgomery, however, pulls a trick which surprises everybody, and then the fun starts. Elizabeth Allen and Ralph Forbes support Montgomery—though he needs support! Then, too, there's "King Neptune," one of Walt Disney's Silly Symphonies, to start the entertainment in Main Auditorium, Saturday night, October 20 at 7:30 o'clock.

SPECIAL MERCHANTS' ISSUE

The Johnsonian is pursuing its annual policy in publishing this week an issue devoted largely to advertisements given by the merchants and other business men of Rock Hill. We feel that in printing a business issue, we are giving the merchants a chance to show the students and the faculty exactly what Rock Hill has to offer.

Before rushing off to Charlotte to buy what we need, let us first consider that the Johnsonian depends upon the support of Rock Hill merchants a great deal more than upon the backing of Charlotte stores. We, then, as the representatives of the Johnsonian, should in turn give Rock Hill business our trade. By this spirit of cooperation for a mutual good, both the Johnsonian and the merchants will profit.

Let us, therefore, as intelligent and right-thinking students, read the advertisements in the Johnsonian. Let us give to our advertisers the chance to supply our needs; for after all the merchants do depend on the students just as the Johnsonian, the student paper, depends upon the merchants.

One further evidence of cooperation we should like to ask: "When we purchase articles in Rock Hill stores, let us remember to say, 'I saw your ad in the Johnsonian!'"

IN STEP WITH THE TIMES

The Johnsonian, as the official spokesman of the Winthrop student body, congratulates the administration on the decision to permit a Winthrop varsity debating team to visit other colleges. We know that we are expressing the general feeling on the campus. Evidence enough was the quick and hearty applause which followed announcement of the decision.

We feel that Winthrop is thus making a forward step in keeping with the trend of the times. We fully appreciate the fact that Winthrop, as the State College for Women, must of necessity be rather conservative. We believe, however, that where conservatism retards progress, it should be tempered with liberalism and foresight.

We know that Winthrop is going forward all the time, but we know also that the world at large is making still greater strides ahead. Our contention is, therefore, that Winthrop must continue to progress, else the college shall be left behind.

Progress always involves change, but nothing is more dynamic and changing than is education itself. College, moreover, as the exponents of learning, should welcome such changes as are destined to come. Winthrop is no exception.

And so, we feel that Winthrop, in allowing students to visit other schools, has broadened the scope of college life. All the students will not be directly affected, it is true, but all will be affected indirectly. Anything which helps the college influence the individual student.

We are sure that the administration will not regret its decision. In this assumption, we know we are expressing the opinion of the student body as a whole.

Convict Labor Used In Building College

Convicts from the State Penitentiary built Main Building and Harpers' Name Hall, and laid the foundation for McLaurin Hall. These convicts, 108 in all, were brought from Columbia and placed in barracks just across the railroad.

Work on the college began in 1883; the construction of Main Building was laid in 1884. The prisoners at work presented an interesting picture. Among them, and within sight of one another were the guard-post: one near the fountain, one at the covered way between North and Bancroft, one on the site of the gymnasium, one at the coal-pile, etc. Every guard had a detail of prisoners at work under him.

Many of the convicts were first-class laborers. One Sam Sanders, a bright, mulatto, was especially skillful as a carpenter and cabinet-maker; he, with an assistant, directed the fitting together of the moldings, banisters, and woodwork in Main Building. The only punishment which the prisoners received was whipping. An old whipping post locked up in the basement of Main Building is a quaint reminder of early days. His tall square frame stands against a wall with a clock for the hands halfway down its bright the stock that held the feet of the culprit is gone.

Restrictions on the prisoners in the barracks were many. For instance, after bed-time a prisoner might not get out of bed unless he first obtained permission from the "corporal," who kept guard in the hall.

One night, thirteen prisoners escaped through a hole somehow cut through the flimsy wooden wall of the barracks. The story was later told on the watching corporal that as the men jumped through the hole, one by one they called out, "Gettin' out, corporal!" and the corporal answered "Right!" thereby giving every one of the thirteen men permission to escape.

Freshman Class Begins Election of Officers

Mamie Keneck, of Laurens, was elected cheer leader of the Freshman class, and Edith Ferrell, of Oreeville, plants, at a meeting Tuesday night, October 15.

Other officers will be elected later.

WINTHROP...
WEEK BY WEEK

(With Apologies to McIntyre)
Thoughts while strolling: Those new letters on the Y.W.C.A. bulletin board are quite elegant. . . Miss Ketchin and Dr. Keith carry on animated conversations in the post office during rush hours. . . Laura Babb insists that Stepin Fetchit is her favorite comedian. There's still no accounting for tastes. It would seem. We still prefer Laurel and Hardy. . . By the way, we hear that we'll have nightmares after seeing "The Mystery of Mr. X" tomorrow night. But Robert Montgomery is so nearly perfect in our eyes that we don't mind. . . Getty Carriean always has to bet the "low-down" on everybody. It seems. This year it's for the Journal. We're looking forward to the first issue, too, some time in November, we understand.

We quote the Literary Digest: What makes us wonder about history in general is listening in traffic court to the testimony of two eye-witnesses to the same collision. We would add, especially when Dr. Keith delights in debunking the hallowed documentary evidences still further.

We always try to include something useful; this week we've borrowed from the Saturday Evening Post:

"Good morning! Ready? Here we go! Roll over, one, two, kick the bedding, three, four, open one eye, five, six, shut it again, seven, eight! That's fine! Now rest a minute, maybe two."

"Now, here we go again! Get ready! Roll on the back, one, two, kick the bedding, three, four, stretch the legs, five, six, wiggle the toes, seven, eight! Rest!"

"Ready? Open one eye, one, two, open the other, three, four, stretch the arms, five, six, ya-a-awn, seven, eight. Rest!"

"Ready? The next one is harder, so get ready! Now! Kick back the bedding, one, two, sit up in bed, three, four, massage the head, five, six, scratch the neck, seven, eight! Now stare into space a while and rest."

"Here we go on the last one! Ready! Swing feet to floor, one, two, into slippers, three, four, now do five, six, as you please, seven, eight! That's all! Good morning!"

Our only objection to the above is that by the time we've gone through all the necessary contortions, the breakfast bell has already rung!

Short shavings: Something you wouldn't know if we didn't tell you: Mr. James once played and sang the role of Hansel in the operetta, "Hansel and Gretel." . . . We can hardly recognize Dot and Eleanor because of the magnificent splendor of their golden "W's" emblazoned across black sweaters. . . . Then there was the Freshman who mailed a letter in her own box and complained of the inefficiency of the P. O. staff because it remained there four days. . . . And two refused to ride with Mr. Gordon even after he had assured them he assured them the Winthrop policeman. . . . The W's seem to have had a monopoly on the presidency of the class of '35: first it was Waggon; then, Wylie, then Ware; and now, Wagon again. . . .

And here we are back again to Punch: "The English Sunday, for weal or woe," says the Bishop of Chelmsford, is now practically a thing of the past. What remains emphatically for woe is the English Monday.

No, to speak of the Winthrop Monday—

Anna Louise Remesker contributes this one: A bore is somebody who talks about himself all the time when you're wanting to talk about yourself.

Judge says an excellent substitute for a cold shower is to go down to the bank and ask for a loan. We would add—or to suggest having a week-end when we've already had one—

Our poem for the week is presented just:

In Case You've Wondered

He says that every girl he knows by idiotic questions shows she has no brains, though many charms enhance her.

Young man, each girl from babyhood is taught she never, never should ask any man a question he can't answer.

Beta Pi Theta Has Meeting At Shack

Theta Omega Chapter of Beta Pi Theta will hold its regular meeting in the form of a picnic at the Shack this afternoon. Plans for initiation of the pledges will be discussed. A Beta Pi Theta scrapbook will be compiled.

The Social Committee, composed of Alice McNairy, Eleanor Lawton, and Helen Lawton, is in charge of the supper plans.

BULL SESSIONS
Pro and Con

Tat Suber says (as would John Dryden): "Some bull sessions are to be tasted, others to be chewed, and some few to be swallowed and digested!"

Anna Ware's opinion: "Bull sessions are the best places in the world to learn to know people. Likes and dislikes, meanness and kindness, selfishness and unselfishness, knowledge and ignorance, wisdom and innocence, cleverness and stupidity, are discovered not only by the opinions set forth but also by the expressions registered on the listeners' faces, and their interest and lack of interest in certain topics."

"Nothing is so amusing as being a silent on-looker at a bull session, and nothing so invigorating as playfully 'shooting the bull' with the rest. I believe in them thoroughly! I think they are quite an essential part of a college education!"

Marguerite Zeigler
Marguerite Zeigler affirms: "I am a firm believer in 'get-togethers' which go by the unattractive name of 'bull sessions.' Perhaps if they were called 'stretches or some other fancy title, there would not be the antipathy toward them which the name arouses. One dislikes to think of herself in connection with the bovine family."

Tootie Woods states: "We can't know girls and what they're thinking about just by meeting them in the halls and classrooms and on the campus; so in my opinion, bull sessions are a grand means of talking things over and really understanding one's own views by hearing other points of view."

Frances Wylie
Frances Wylie concludes: "Some of us openly revel in bull sessions, whereas others pretend a scornful indifference, but we all will admit that we do indulge some little, at least occasionally. Most often we are swept irresistibly into the discussion after a brief but unsuccessful struggle with that stern, inner got-to-go-study self."

"Who dares to prophesy when some precious words of wisdom are to be indulged in the battle wastes more furious as the disrupted quorum veers suddenly from. Can really nice girls hitch-hike to California on $18.87?" to the more immediately pressing question, "Where to find that elusive $2.52 to go to the State Fair?" Then we plunge on breathlessly, everybody at fever pitch now to decide the fate of a nation: "What will the Dionne quintuplets ever do when they grow up and go to dances?" (We agree on that one though, don't you? "They'll be a panic!")

"And who's to doubt that many a bit of stray information picked up in such a gathering will be far more valuable in later years than tomorrow's woefully neglected history of the French Revolution?"

"There's no need to 'major' in bull sessions while at college, but still there is no need to deprive oneself entirely of the stimulating ideas brought forth in the poor, misunderstood target of so much criticism, the bull session."

Frankly, I would rather sit in a good bull session than eat, and that is for me at least, absolutely going the limit."

News—Y's and Other Y's

Two cars, weighted down with girls, slickers, suitcases, blankets (mostly blankets), left Winthrop campus Friday morning, bound for Camp Adger.
After a non-stop flight to Spartanburg, we stopped to get our breath—and also popcorn and coffee; Then on again till we reached Pickens, and Corrine Hinton's house. It's funny how Winthrop girls manage to take possession of every place they enter—within two minutes the place was going and girls were in every inch of the house and yard! We'd carried our own lunch, but Mrs. Hinton very graciously furnished home, grapes, sweet crackers
—and the very best punch I've ever tasted. Well, having all but eaten the legs off the table, we fared us forth again.

Our next stop was caused by June's two tires, who, having detected she had done enough for one day, sighed, began to "buz" loose, and commenced to upspin herself. So five and twenty (it was really twelve and one, but that's not quite as "poetical-sounding")—so five and twenty Winthrop girls adorned the country-side while some very gentlemanly mountaineers put Jan's tires to sleep and rounded her sister to take her place.

Next we stopped at the old mill,
where we gave our baggage to the tender care of Uncle Tom, the mule, and the wagon, and busied ourselves to climb to the camp—from there until we reached the top our steps were many and not far between!

Then came a continual succession of experiences never to be forgotten—the removal of old friendships, and the gaining of new contact with people so fine that just to be on the same retreat is an inspiration, talks, discussions, songs.

In even less than no time at all,
the week-end was gone and we were on our way back to school. We stopped at Milma's house, and her people not only took us in with open arms,
they fed us gallons of coffee, stacks
of bread and peanut-butter sandwiches, cookies and crackers without number!
Monday morning found us going to class as usual, a little tired and sleepy, but happy and inspired, for each of us had experienced, in lesser or greater degree, that something which Ad-ger tries to give those who attend her retreat.

Junior Forum Hears Current Book Reviews

Junior Forum members are having October 17.

Six Students Receive Winthrop Block Letters

Polly McNeill, president of the Athletic Association, presented block letters in chapel Friday, October 12, to those students who had qualified under the new series of awards.
Caroline Shaw, Chloë Calhoun,
Polly McNeill, and Alma Hopkins, Seniors; and Dot Manning and Eleanor Kinz, Juniors, received the "W."

Winthrop Glee Club On Chapel Program

Winthrop College Glee Club sang four selections in chapel Tuesday, October 16. The program included "Moon Money," by Frank; "By the Waters of Minnesota," by Leaurance; "Daddy Boy," an Irish folk song; "I Have Hung
My Tent in Crimson," by Sprou. Miriam Speights played "By the Waters of Minnesota" as a violin solo.

BLUE SPECTATOR

Also and slack! All of you old footloose-theater favorites, such as pig latin and sign talking, are having to take a back seat in favor of a new language, while we suspect it being inaugurated at Winthrop by the youngest of our daughters, the Freshman.
Have you heard something like this?
"Get let from George today. Do love."
"O come see. Do sent box of cab-good can." It's maddening. You tear your hair and end up by joining the ranks of the nuts. . . . By the way, have you noticed how quiet the Juniors are keeping plans for prep meet? Wonder what they have up their sleeves—Yes, besides arms, Oswald. On your mark, Sherlock! . . . The laundry is evidently planning to go into the wholesale button business as a side-line, considering the size of this collection
they have been making this year. Oh well, at least one can help pull old prosperity around the corner by accelerating the safety-pin business. . .
Have you heard the latest gossip about our illustrious faculty? Dr. Jarrell pleads guilty of rapidly becoming another absent-minded professor. He arrived at a class ten minutes late one day this week. To the waiting students he explained that when he was half-way over to the college, he suddenly remembered that he had not combed his hair; so he retraced his steps in order to tame the tousled head.
Nuff said. . . . Then "are is a certain person who ends business notes to his associates with, "And is my facred?" . . . In the basement of Main Building a trilling whist was heard.
A curious bystander followed it up and met—Dean Hardin. . . . Our congratulations to Mary Haynsworth. We notice that she has acquired a first place after two years' work towards that goal. . . . Missionary Leah has changed her mind. She is going to be a librarian instead. . . . Since a certain set of questionnaire cards are being circulated among students, we find that Winthropians are acquiring a pronounced liking for Dickens and Shakespeare. . . . The German party was a distinct social success, we hear.
Ask "Lib" Bunch about her particular Land Chatterfield. . . . The Seniors are plainly wondering what they are going to use for money after they get to the State Fair. Join a breadline, perhaps, or—Well, we wonder, too.

Dr. Glenn G. Naudain New Post Commander

Dr. G. G. Naudain was elected Post
Commander of the Frank Bosch Post
No. 34 of the American Legion for the year 1934-35. The meeting was held Thursday night, October 18, at the Chamber of Commerce Building, to organize committees and their activities for the new year.
The bonus question was discussed,
and the post unanimously voted to go on record as favoring the immediate cash payment of the bonus. In the presence of 306 members, the new officers were installed.

Forceps and Scalpel Club Discuss Scientists

Forceps and Scalpel Club met Friday, October 13, in Tillman Hall.
Leola Wilson, Senior physical education major, was elected reporter and a committee to make plans for institution of new members was appointed.
After the business meeting, Sara Touchberry gave an outline of the life and work of Pasteur and Ethel Price talked on Jenner's discovery of yellow fever inoculation.
Refreshments were served by Helen Talbert, Leola Wilson, and Helen Lawson.

New Officers Chosen By Elementary Club

Dorothy Query was elected corresponding secretary of the Elementary Education Club at a call meeting Wednesday, October 17. Gladys Westbrook was chosen recording secretary; and Alma Crow, treasurer.

Mildred McComb was elected president last spring; and Alice White, vice-president.

After the election of officers, plans were discussed for the year's activity.

CLEMSON CADET SAW CORNERSTONE LAYING

Alumnus Relates How Corps Traveled to Winthrop For Official Ceremonies

"So you go to Winthrop, eh? Well, that's a mighty fine place."

The speaker was Mr. Frank A. Taylor, of Greenville, and the conversation took place one day last summer, when we were on our way down town.

"Well," thought I to myself, "one thing is certain: This can't go on long." I letted myself to listen to another eulogy of Winthrop's many virtues. The next remark, however, rather surprised me:

"I was over there at the laying of the corner-stone."

"Really?"

"Yes. I was a cadet at Clemson that year, and they took all of us boys over to the ceremony."

Immediately I was all interest. "Do tell me about it," I urged.

"Well, let me see: It's so long past that I don't remember very much about it. It must have been pretty close to fifty years ago. Anyhow, I remember we all got up about six o'clock one morning, and took the train to Charlotte. As there were no trains to Rock Hill, we went from Charlotte to Winthrop in wagons and buggies."

Clemson Had 76 Cadets

"There were only about seventy-five of us then. We were little boys—all about fifteen years of age."

"We wore khaki uniforms. The coats were long, and made swallow-tailed. We also wore caps with visors—made like the ones the Confederate soldiers wore."

"Our commandant at that time was, by the way, Major T. Q. Donaldson, of Greenville. (Major Donaldson was destined to become Brigadier-General in the United States Army. He is now retired and makes his home in Greenville. He was the father of the late John G. Donaldson, noted war-ace and famous aviator.)"

Tillman and Johnson Spoke

"Well, we got to Rock Hill about ten o'clock in the morning, and went straight to the site of the college. We heard speeches made by Governor Ben Tillman and Dr. D. B. Johnson. The corner-stone was laid, and we met Governor Tillman and Dr. Johnson. We were shown the grounds, and foundations. Later we had a picnic lunch spread out under the big trees on front campus. After that we left."

"Surely that wasn't all," I hastily exclaimed. "Tell me about the speeches. How I would love to have heard them."

"Well—uh, I'm afraid I can't tell you much about them. You see, we boys were thinking much more about dinner."

Cadets Saw No Winthrop Girls

"To tell you the honest truth, the cadets weren't so keen about making the trip anyhow. That was some idea of Governor Tillman's. He was very much interested in education for young South Carolinians, and he thought that Clemson and Winthrop should be brother and sister colleges. Why—we didn't even get to see any girls!"

"Oh, heavens!" I gasped. "I don't see how they could keep you from it. I know that Winthrop did boast perfectly gorgeous girls during the 'gay nineties,' but still..."

"Oh, said he, 'Don't you fret. If there had been any girls there we would have seen them. But you know they couldn't take the whole cadet crop of Clemson College over to Winthrop when it was in session. That would be too good to be true. No, no, the corner-stone was laid in the spring, and the student body did not move to Rock Hill from Columbia until the next September!'" was to be made an Admiral in the Spanish Navy, to be viceroy of the lands he discovered, and to govern certain of the new provinces.

Contrary to general opinion Columbus did not die in disgrace, as is claimed; his worldly position at the time of his death was excellent. Three districts and ten towns now claim to be the birthplace of Columbus, but he himself states that he was born out in the open.

Psychology Society Has Shack Meeting

Psychology Club members had a steak supper at the Senior Shack Thursday afternoon from 4:30 to 7:30 o'clock. At the supper, the new vice-president, Leola Wilson, and the new treasurer, Crystal Danahy, who were recently elected to fill vacancies in the club, were formally installed.

and most distinguished lectures in America which it has built up in its twelve years of existence. Out of its repository of 104 plays approximately thirty-five are kept on the active list. Shaw is the most popular play-wright and Riggs and O'Neill follow. The two performances at Winthrop will be selected from Milne's "The Romanic Age," Galsworthy's "Inheritors," Ervin's "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary," and O'Neill's "Beyond the Horizon."

Edward Tomlinson, Journalist

Edward Tomlinson, Journalist and traveler, will lecture on the political situation in the other Americas on the night of January 11.

Mr. Tomlinson knows more about the inside story of the great game of international politics and trade now being played in the other Americas than any other man alive. During the past summer he traveled 15,000 miles by air securing up to the minute information on the political situation in South America. Since 1923, he has spent a part of each year in the southern republics keeping up with the political and economic life.

Mr. Tomlinson is thoroughly familiar with the geography, personalities, and people of the Americas. He is the official lecturer on South America for the League of Political Education in New York City. Through his numerous lectures and radio talks, he has come to be an international figure in political affairs. His lecture at Winthrop will be selected from the following subjects: "A New Deal in Latin America," "What South America Means to Us," "Wings Over South America," and "A Night on the Spanish Main."

Tommy Sarg's Marienettes

Tommy Sarg's Marienettes will appear in two performances on February 1. Mr. Sarg is the leading marienette producer of the world. This year's production will probably include "Uncle Remus" and "Faust, The Wicked Magician."

Helietta, Violinist

Jaucha Helietta, famous Russian violinist, will play on the evening of February 8. Helietta ranks along with Kreisler as the two foremost violinists in the world. During his youth, he studied under Professor Auer at the Petrograd Conservatory of Music. His first public appearance was made at the age of four and one-half years of age when he played in Vienna. He has given concerts throughout the entire world. Helietta has appeared as soloist with orchestras under Nikisch, Tchaikovsky, Koussevitzky, Schenck, and others. His repertoire includes most of the classical and modern violin music. He has recently completed a tour of Russia.

Marc Connelly's "Green Pastures" "Green Pastures," miracle play of modern times, will be presented at Winthrop, February 20. February 21 will mark the 10th birthday of Marc Connelly's drama. It has long since passed its 1,000 performance and during this time the players have traveled over hundreds of miles within the confines of the theatres of the United States and Canada.

"Green Pastures" won the Pulitzer prize in 1930 and Richard B. Harrison, who played the part of De Lawd, that same year was awarded the Spingarn medal which is given to an outstanding member of the negro race.

The personnel of the play is virtually changeless from year to year. Doc Doe Green continues as Gabriel, Daniel Hays as Adam, Charles Moore as the Sunday School Teacher, and George Randol as King Pharaoh. Morris McKinney has the role of Noah, succeeding Samuel Tuit Whitney, who died in Chicago. The troupe is still co-ed-mingled by Clarence Jacobson. Recently Richard B. Harrison celebrated his 78th birthday. The entire cast is composed of seventy-five negroes.

Switskaya, Dancer

Thamara Switskaya and her ballet will be presented March 1. Since her debut at the Metropolitan, Switskaya has added rich experience and profound cultivation to her art of the dance. After appearing at the Metropolitan, she danced with Pavlova as solo artist, spent three years with the Chicago Opera Company, and then toured Paris, London, India, India, Egypt, and Java. She creates her own dances and has a repertoire of great variety.

Switskaya has danced at some of the finest estates in the world, including the Baron Rothschild place in Paris. She gave 100 performances of "The Soul of Chopin" at the Colliseum during a five-week engagement in London.

Joseph Scherer, Lecturer

Joseph Scherer, lecturer, will speak on March 21 and 22. He has given over 500 lectures in six languages. Mr. Scherer is familiar with the details of human life in Japan, Bali, India, Angkor, China, Indo-China, Siam, Singapore, and Java and gives illustrated lectures about these people. He has become an international lecturer, a professional globe-writer, an author, and a journalist. His subjects at Winthrop will be "Japan and Its Intimate Home Life and Romantic Comedies with Angkor Wat." His lecture on Japan will be illustrated by some 200 extraordinary "Life-Pictures," showing the people in their homes from morning to evening. There will be views of Japan, its industries, temples, and shrines.
